Sandra presents a compelling talk about her newest book, John Brown in New York: The Man, His Family, and the Adirondack Landscape and offers a fresh and intimate look at the famed abolitionist, focusing on the years of the Brown family's connection with North Elba, Essex County (1848–1863). The intertwining story of sublime Adirondack scenery, farm life, and racial justice explores John Brown not only as a national figure but as a husband, father, neighbor, abolitionist, and equalitarian.

Sandra Weber, of Elizabethtown, has authored several books about the Adirondack region, including Breaking Trail: Remarkable Women of the Adirondacks (co-author, Peggy Lynn), Mount Marcy, The Finest Square Mile, and Adirondack Roots.

In addition to her writings, she is also well-known for her dramatic portrayals of Mary Brown in "Times of Trouble" and of Mother Johnson, Jeanne Robert Foster, Kate Field, and other women in "Remarkable Women of the Adirondacks."
